Bertelmann Case Has Some Humorous Points.

The threat of counsel for F. Bertelmann, charged with gross cheat, made yesterday before Police Judge Whitnev that he would block the legal work of the County Attorney's office for the next three months, caused something of a broad grin to pervade the com- in that district. posite countenance of those present in County Attorney Milverton smilingly sideration of the section was deferred. rejoined that counsel could subpoena the whole city if he liked.

The threat was made after the Bertelmann case had gone on for hours, with constant objections on the part passed after a tumult of discussion. of Bertelmann's counsel.

Bertelmann's counsel continually claimed that Mr. Milverton was distorting the testimony given by Bertelmann, at which Mr. Milverton merely

When Bertelmann was asked if he had not employed a native boy to help him, he explained that he had done so. It was a boy he did not know, except that the youngster had told him he was thoroughly acquainted with certain neighborhoods, and was therefore a good agent to have.

"I don't know much about this boy," explained Bertelmann, "He told me that he carried sticks around somewhere in Manoa Valley-you know some sticks they play with, and"-

"Gawf, is what you refer to, and the boy was a caddy," explained the Court

While endeavoring to put certain questions to Bertelmann, Milverton found a mountain of objections made by Bertelmann's counsel piling up.

"Your honor, when I begin to get his witness in a tight corner, he begins objecting and without reason," protest-

"You will have a sweet time getting me in a tight corner, let me tell you,'

was the rejoinder. "Well. I object to counsel coaching his witness," concluded Milverton.

The bulk of Bertelmann's testimony was to show that he had collected $1 each from Japs and Chinese for inserting their names in his directory. He gave a receipt and took the money. He explained to the court that he had been delayed in his directory scheme because he spent four months in jail at the time he was undergoing trial in the Federal court.

The case has not been finished.

STRANGE CASE OF PROFESSOR CURTIS

Editor Advertiser: I wish to explain the case of G. C. Curtis, a guest of the house on or about June 20, 1905. On Saturday of June 17, Mr. Curtis came to me and asked how he might climb Mauna Loa mountain. To him I stated that we never let our horses for that purpose, and he says why not? Well, because they often never live to lows: return or perhaps die in a few days after. I said he would have to go to Kapapala ranch (Mr. Monsarrat's) and there he would find a native man who could fit him out with mules, horses, etc., for the climb. How much would it cost? I said $75 for one going up. Well, could I let him have a horse to ride to Kapapala ranch with, and I said yes. So I rang up Monsarrat's but he was out. I then rang up Mr. Geo. Lycurgus, Hilo, and asked him if the horse could go to the ranch with ' Mr. Curtis and that he would send it | ong. Kauahipauloopio, J. B. Kaohi, J. back by stage the next day. Mr. Lycurgus said yes, so I started him away, with the understanding that he was to telephone me on his arrival, and inform me if the horse was on its way back. Was worried about it, so on Sunday I tried to telephone, but could not get an answer, so on Monday a. m, early I rang up the ranch and no one was there except a native and Mr. A. B. Loebenstein, a guest at the time, interpreted to the native for me, and he said the man had gone to the mountain on Sunday p. m. and ridden our horse, which he was forbidden to do, as it was not a horse for that

On the following Tuesday night on his way to Volcano House ex-Sheriff Searle passed him and told us he was leading the horse about 5 miles away, and that the horse was very lame. He arrived about 8 p. m., turned the horse to the stable, never said I, yes or no to anyone. Went in to dinner and the following morning Mr. Lycurgus asked him about the trip and horse, etc. He said, "What will it cost me?" Mr. yourgus said $75. He absolutely re- and before this problem had been satisfused to pay it. one takes it. If a party go up it is a little less. . Mr. Lycurgus then told him he would make it $50 (you must remember it is 18 miles each way to Kapapala ranch before the climb), and he says "Why I can buy any amount of those horses for $2.50." As he left Honolulu without paying for the horse, we now feel that he had his nerve and got to the mountain and back with all his valuable information for Harvard University very cheaply. We doubt if he has anything to do with university as he said he did, for Mr. Pickering, a professor of Harvard, said he had never heard of him. He might have been a student, nothing more.

The amendment failed and the section went through.

Section 16 caused the irrepressible Kookoo to be again heard from. He suggested that a two-thirds vote of any district should have power to select a candidate to Congress in case the general convention failed to select one.

The section passed unamended. The remaining sections, including the deferred Section 5, were passed without much delay and the constitution as a whole was adopted.

Morris Kaaikaula of Oahu was very sore over the passing of the new constitution, which he heartily denounced. He talked and talked until, at noon, recess was taken, and even then kept on talking.

The first thing done at the afternoon session was the signing of the new constitution by the president and dele-

Nominations were then received for president, the names of Notley and Kalauokalani being proposed. Both withdrew, but Kalauokalani pleaded with Notley to reconsider his determination, asking that the support which would have been accorded him, had he been in the race, be given to Notley. The latter finally accepted the nomination and was unanimously elected.
